

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Stefan L. Brandt and Astrid M. Fellner Introduction: Making the Body, Making America	1
The Politics of the Body and the Making of America	9
Timothy K. Conley Founding Father: Franklin’s Revolutionary Rhetoric and the Emergence of Republican Motherhood	11
Astrid M. Fellner Making Columbia: The Politics of the Body in Revolutionary America	25
Gabriele Pisarz-Ramírez Visions of Columbus: Barlow, Freneau, and the Hemisphere	41
The Body and Discourses of Medicine and Sexuality	59
Thomas Clark “... to convert men into republican machines”: Rush, Foucault, and the Making of Virtuous Bodies	61
Jörg Thomas Richter Hereditary Sin and the Post-Revolutionary Phallacy: An Essay on Royall Tyler’s The Origin of Evil (1793)	81
Embodiment and National Self-Fashioning	97
Zoe Detsi-Diamanti Ethnicity and the Republican National Body: Americanizing ‘Paddy’ in Early American Plays, 1789-1825	99
Christian Quendler Bodies of Letters: National, Literary, and Gender Identities in Epistolary Fiction of the Early Republic	117
Stefan L. Brandt Exploring the “Heart of the Wilderness”: Cultural Self-Fashioning and the Aesthetics of the Body in Charles Brockden Brown’s Edgar Huntly, or, Memoirs of a Sleep-Walker	133
Contributors and Editors	153