

DARYL COPELAND

GUERRILLA DIPLOMACY
RETHINKING INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Guest Lecture by

Daryl Copeland

(Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade /
Munk Centre for International Studies, University of Toronto)

Guerrilla Diplomacy: Rethinking International Relations

Monday, 9 November 2009

12 - 14 h

Room 340

Daryl Copeland will speak on his recently published book, Guerrilla Diplomacy, which is scholarly in format and constructed on an extensive research base, but not written in standard, impenetrable academic tome. The tone is conversational and the approach inter-disciplinary, holistic and rather unconventional. The argument? If long-term, human-centred development has in large part become the new security in the globalization age, then diplomacy, re-tooled for the 21st century, must displace defence at the centre of international policy. More talking, less fighting; more dialogue, less diktat.

For more information, please contact:

Frauke Brammer

John-F.-Kennedy-Institut für Nordamerikastudien

Abteilung Geschichte

Lansstraße 7-9

14195 Berlin

U3/Bus Dahlem Dorf

brammer@jfki.fu-berlin.de

Freie Universität  Berlin

